Environmental Integration is a club focused on the discussion and development of climate change action plans on a local, state, national and global level. The club aims to bring attention to possible solutions to the climate change crisis and encourage development of innovations, legislation, accountability and movements aimed at helping to transform our world into one that is more sustainable and integrated with the natural environment rather than exploiting it. The club will entail discussions/debates, movie nights, workshops, guest speakers, excursions and a variety of other projects and activities that will lead to valuable connections, experiences, knowledge and stories.

Leadership Positions and Duties - Minimum of Three

The club is organized by Lucas Roque and advised by Professor Geordie Armstrong. However, the club will not follow typical leadership role dynamics. The club aims to be fully democratic with a community focussed format. Each member has one vote on the dynamics in which the club works as well as the events/activities which the club hosts/partakes in.
